Forecast For Wales
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 23 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain in the west, drier and brighter further east.

Today:
After a bright, chilly start, it will turn increasingly cloudy from the northwest through the morning, with some patchy light rain or drizzle likely for western areas. Eastern areas staying dry and seeing the best of any sunny spells. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud will continue to build from the northwest overnight, reaching southeastern areas through the early hours after a clear evening there. Patchy light rain or drizzle persisting under this cloud. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Thursday:
More organised rain, heavy at times, sweeps southeastwards across the country through the morning. Becoming drier and brighter following this, but with a risk of some showers. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Unsettled conditions throughout, with some dry and bright spells across the country. Outbreaks of rain and showers, some of these heavy and possibly thundery, are likely, however.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.